Veterans day

By: Inch

At Louisville Middle School, Veterans came in to talk to students about their experience in war. Many of the Veterans who came in and talked to the students and had badges and papers to look at and videos to show. One speaker, named Mike Maicro, had badges to show and one was called the purple heart. You receive a purple heart badge when you get wounded in war. Thank you to all the Veterans that have served and risked their lives for our freedom!

Lockdown Practice at LMS

By: Mooch

Today all students district wide are trained for lockdowns. We were taught how protect ourselves against intruders, what difference methods are the best.

How to be safe in a room. Most importantly how to deal with a weapon. If in contact with the weapon

Louisville's Phone Policy

By: Peanut

Louisville's phone policy is ridiculous. If the phone is silenced there is no vibration on , than just because the phone is on , it shouldn't be a problem considering that it's not a distraction to you or anyone else in the classroom. Like one time this was an event that happened not to long ago. Marissa's \phone was charging and she wasn't even near her phone. She still got in trouble for it. Just because it was on. I think every student would agree with her that it's dumb to get in trouble just because your phone is on. She also thinks that you shouldn't get a detention for it either.

Trip to Gettysburg

By: Silver

A couple weeks ago students from LMS went to D.C. and on their way back home they visited Gettysburg to learn more about the history of the battle that took place there. When the students got to Gettysburg they first went to the gift shop and also picked up a tour

High School Pandemonium

By: Fleece

Two highschool students, a sophomore and a freshman, got into a physical fight over relationship drama. Sophomore, Blake, was just leaning against a wall in the hallway before first period when freshman, Landon, came down the hall and slapped Blake across the face. Blake reacted quickly and the pandemonium began. The fight lasted around 30 seconds before the principal came in to break it up. When the principal got the students separated, they started swearing and yelling at each other. The students got a two day suspension and a good lecture from the police over fighting. Being a single pringle isn't a bad thing to try every once in a while... it can keep you out of trouble.

The Book Fair

By: Scoop

The class got to see the book fair and kids got books and there were sequels to many books, my favorite beginning Thunderhead. So kids got to buy there favorite books. Don't forget to buy your books to get now. Also don't judge a book by it's cover.

your are to hold down the bad guy , and then one person push the weapon as far away from the suspect as possible and then cover with a trash can and guard it.

We all practiced an actual lockdown , by locking the door cover the windows and barricading the door with tables, all students were ready to throw things at the "fake" suspect, such as chairs, books and other heavy throwable items. Any wrong moves could cause you and the others to be found.

guide. second they visited the tree line that the Confederate army came out of in the second battle of Gettysburg. The tour guide also explained the horrible and excruciatingly hot march through rough terrain to get to Gettysburg. The tour guide also told the students about the flag bearers, that carried each sides flags and boosted their soldiers moral and were targeted because of that. After this the students went to the Union positions at Little Round Top, that was on a rocky side of a tall hill where you could see the entire battlefield. After this the students went back to the gift shop and dropped the tour guide off and went back to the long tiring way home.
