Louisville 8th grade Basketball Tryouts

By: Prince Charming

Louisville's 8th grade boys basketball tryouts began on November 5th at Louisville Middle School, so the boys could showcase their skills and compete for a spot on the team. It was a very tense environment, and everyone was urgent to show off their talent in all the drills. Coach Aljancic kept a watchful eye on all of the athletes to observe who he thought deserved to make the team.

"Hustle, hustle, hustle!"

Coach yelled persistently as everyone sprinted across the gym.

As practice neared an ending, the boys competed in 3 on 3 drills to sharpen their skills in game situations.

Although being able to shoot well is important, there are many other things that coaches look for in good teammates. This was apparent in many of the drills, as players looked to pass and play good defense instead of shooting all of the time. If the athletes recognize how to be good team players, it looks like the Leopards could have a great season this year.

Veterans Day Assembly

By: Sulley

On Friday, November 2nd at Louisville Middle School the students and staff had an assembly for Veterans Day to thank and remember all the veterans for serving for our country. The middle school band played a song. Also the middle school choir sang a song before they started to announce the veterans. They started calling up the veterans to remember them by the century they started serving in. After a couple centuries the choir sang another song. After the choir was done they started to announce the rest of the veterans. As the veterans came up they announced what they served in and for how long and if they had a family member in our grade they had to go up with the. About ten minutes later they were done announcing the veterans and the choir sang another song and everyone was supposed to sing along with them. After that song was over they recognized the lady who served and was about to turn 100 years old. Many students learned what it was like to serve for country that day.

Football Fight

By: Chip

J. is a 13 year old boy that got into a fight at the Louisville football game in October with a freshman from LHS. The freshman was kicking J's leg from behind for no reason and was told to stop. J. was done with the student almost immediately and started to fight him. J. got him on the ground and kept with him until one of the LMS science teachers from 8th grade separated them. The freshman got suspended for 3 days for starting the fight but J. got a detention for self defense.

Capitol Building Tour

By: Cinderella

On October 24, 2018 LMS students that were up in Washington D.C. took a tour of the capitol building at 9:00 am. They saw the sopsid tomb of George Washington. Above his tomb was a star that pointed in every direction like north, south, east, and west. The tour guide said "that there were ghost that roam President washington's tomb boo". She took us to the center of the capitol building. We saw paintings and statues.

Louisville High School soccer game

By: Donald

Last game until playoffs the Louisville High School Soccer Team was fighting for the win. The game started and Louisville had already scored. Within 13 mins the score was 5-0. Louisville was crushing the other team 10 nothing. The opponents were playing to aggressive. Louisville was destroying their opponents and the score was 16 to nothing. Louisville shot and scored making it 17-0 Louisville. The opponents were so furious at the calls the ref made that it was about to break into a big fight. But there was no fight and the leopards won. Louisville were really on the prowl for the win.

The Veterans day speakers

By: Aurora

On Friday November 2nd, 2018 it was Veterans Day at Louisville Middle School. Our reporter started in Mr. Komo's room. In Mr. Komo's room was Mr. Neil Denver-Army, 5 years combat engineer, S.W.A.T. shield at Fort Hood, and has been around the world.

Next speaker was Matthew Baughman-National Guard, again all over the world, while speaking he mentions a turret named a C.R.A.M., he also mentioned one of his friends ate things for money, Leo ate a live lizard for 11 dollars, and another ate a booger for about 20 dollars.

Then was Mike Maiorca-Alpha Company, Vietnam, Led a platoon of 20 men, operated search, and destroy at day, then go at night to ambush. Did 43 ambushes in a row. During one ambush in the rain, they thought the enemy was all around them, so they got scared, and started firing randomly. Went out, and found only one dead water buffalo. Next Dan Shilling-U.S. Navy, 23 years. Followed hurricane, and got flooded. In the auditorium students suited up, and we learned from Mr. Liverett about a man named Walter Murphy who died in a explosion on a road. Veterans Day at LMS was very interesting to hear all of their stories and experiences serving our country.
